Civil War Veterans Resting At Old Village Cemetery (Part 4)

Austen Goucher, born 1806 in New York, and family arrived from the east in time for the birth of their youngest son, Homer, in 1848. The older children: Charles born 1829, Maria born 1836, and William born 1845, were born in New York as was Austin's wife, Lydia born 1809. Records indicate Austin and Lydia bought 40 acres in Brighton Township, Section 5, February 19, 1853 and another 40 acres in Section 8, just across the road (McClements) two years later on December 3, 1855. The Gouchers farmed these acres with the usual cattle, horses, etc., to improve their lifestyle and secure an independence for themselves.

Of their children, Charles married Sylvia A. Smith on August 15, 1855, Maria married Laughlin N. Clark in November, 1853, and William married Mary E. Dennison in 1867.

No one in the Brighton area was untouched by the Civil War. However, the Gouchers could be considered as carrying an excessive burden. Charles' wife, Silvia, had died February 23, 1861. At 38 years old and a widower, he gave his child to be cared for by his sister Maria, and enlisted in Hartford in Co. B, 6th Michigan Cavalry Regiment December 31, 1863. During winter quarters in Stevensburg, Virginia, Charles died of disease on February 21, 1864.

Homer was not old enough to enlist, being barely 16 years old in 1864. However, like youngsters everywhere anxious to do their share, he apparently falsified his age and on January 23, 1864, enlisted in his brother's regiment. Homer was captured in Virginia on June 12, 1864, at the Battle of Trevilian Station, having survived nine earlier battles. Following his capture he was sent to the infamous Andersonville Prison in Georgia. There, after four months of severe privation, he died on October 13, 1864. Sister Maria and her husband raised the orphaned Emma as their own after Charles' death. Tragically, Emma died in 1872 at just 13 years old.

Nevertheless, in spite of these tragedies, the remaining family members picked up the pieces and continued making a significant contribution to the area. William and his son, Charles C. born January 1870, farmed Austin's property, adding more acres through the years. William's daughter, Clara born 1873, married local boy Charles Tusia. Austin's descendants married local people as late as the 1920s.

For many years, the Gouchers were noted for their musical penchant and abilities. Grace (McClements), the wife of Charles C., accompanied the Brighton Singers. The Goucher Orchestra provided music for the 1917 Brighton High School commencement exercises. Their daughter, Lila (married to Andrew Robertson) was in the Goucher's Lady Orchestra in 1918, even before graduating from high school in 1925.

Markers, memorializing Austin (died 1874), Lydia (died 1867), Charles (died 1864), Sylvia (died 1861), Emma (died 1872), Homer (died 1864), Maria (died 1904) and Laughlin, her husband (died 1894), can be found in the Old Village Cemetery.

Brighton's Past is Key to Our Future

Historic George Ratz House at the corner of Hyne and North faces demolition.

Construction of the Ore Creek Mill in the 1830s allowed two vital mills to operate and provide needed resources for the earliest settlers: lumber and flour. This same millpond continues to provide a key setting for recreation to Brighton area families 180 years later.

A recent survey of residents identified Brighton's quaintness as the reason families visit or live here. Historic old buildings, the millpond, family activities and a wide assortment of restaurants are all components of quaintness shared in the survey.

Many home owners in the downtown area take great pride in their early homes. This pride is evident in the continuous efforts to maintain and update their homes, while keeping the classic exterior lines that define their age. These downtown homes preserve the early American image as most homes had a front porch where neighbors would visit and residents would greet people as they walked by.

The Ratz family ran the former Ratz Hardware Store located on Main and Hyne Streets for decades. Their home, on the corner of Hyne and North Streets, most recently held the offices of the Brighton Chamber of Commerce and is now owned by the DDA.

My hope is the Ratz House will be repurposed to maintain its dignified appearance. It's welcoming front porch, flower gardens and well maintained appearance should be ample reason to preserve this early Brighton farmhouse.

Classic early homes in our community are a vital link to the past. The City of Brighton should encourage the continuation of this home on this site. However, demolition is what the DDA has planned for the Ratz House. If you share our commitment to save this historic structure, please contact Dana Foster, City Manager, and tell him you want the Ratz House and its community gardens preserved.

This historic building in our quaint city looks classic in its setting and is of sound construction. It should not be destroyed for sake of a new building or parking lot.

Save Our History

All across our state, and our nation, physical remnants of our past are lost everyday. They disappear with the feel of urban demolition and 'progress' or quietly over time via long term neglect. Either way, once a historic place is gone, it cannot be replaced.

Throughout Livingston County, I see scores of historic sites succumbing to neglect or the pressures of development... old barns and farm houses vanishing, older cemeteries being overrun, their headstones disappearing beneath the soil, old storefronts, office buildings, and industrial sites with signs showing 'build to suit'.

I understand that we cannot save every building, nor would we want to. We need progress, not a museum. However, we must strike a balance as our past is important and worth preserving.

The Spanish American War of 1898 - And It's Impact on Livingston County

Today, Livingston County residents leisurely enjoy hiking, swimming or a family picnic in the beauty of our state parks. Yet, few of us know the significance that Lake State Park had for the future of our country.

The spring of 1898 marked the onset of the Spanish-American War. Tensions between Spain and the United States had been festering for some time over Cuba's independence from Spain. The U.S.S. Maine had been dispatched to Havana Harbor to protect American citizens when civil unrest broke out in January 1898. On February 15, a massive explosion sank the Maine in Havana Harbor resulting in the loss of 226 lives, for which the U.S. blamed Spain.

War began on April 21, 1898, with the U.S. naval blockade of Cuba followed by President McKinley issuing calls for 200,000 volunteers. Among those brave volunteers were the men who made up the 31st, 32nd, 33rd, 34th and 35th Michigan Volunteer Infantry.

Michigan Governor Hazen S. Pingree called up the Michigan National Guard, but due to federal law, each soldier was required to volunteer individually. Practically all of the members of the National Guard volunteered, in total, over 4,800 men.

The men were mobilized at Camp Eaton; currently Island Lake State Park. In May 1898, the 31st and 32nd Regiments were sent to Chickamauga Park, Georgia, and Tampa, Florida, respectively. The 33rd and the 34th were sent to Camp Alger, near Washington, D.C. The 35th Regiment, the last unit mobilized, was sent to Camp Meade, Pennsylvania.

Camp Eaton was named for former Adjutant General of the Michigan National Guard, Charles Eaton, who died at his post in 1895. It was Gov. Pingree who commissioned and named the camp, and also lived there with the troops.

Camp Eaton served as the muster-in site for the Michigan National Guard beginning about April 26, 1898. This was also the site of the Michigan National Guard annual encampment in 1903.

Island Lake State Park is located east of US-23 and south of I-96. The park entrance is located on Kinsington Road, south of Grand River.

If you happen to make use of its rolling green acres, you might want to stop and take the time to read the sign erected in honor of the men from Michigan who volunteered and served our country.
