"Peanut" Cline’s Clothing Store

At about the time of his father's (Lawrence Cline) death in 1899, Frank Cline, b. 1865, was in business at 440 W. Main. The two-story frame structure housed men’s clothing store. It was built c.1873 as part of the Smith-McPherson Addition with the coming of the railroad. A large wood awning over the plank wall protected shoppers. In the mid-20th century this was removed having been declared a public hazard. During the 1930s local apples were stored in the basement which made for a pleasant scent each fall in the store above.

Arthur M. Dayan joined the business for 14 years in 1911. Cline - Dayan Co. ran an ad in the April 8, 1914 issue of the Brighton Argus "Our stock of wool shirts consists of three of the best makes on the market, including the Moore garment with patent sleeves." In May 1930, the Argus noted "F.M. Cline was over to Battle Creek for two or three days on a tailoring trip." Although Frank was a tailor, fitting local men for well-tailored suits, he dressed in his own unique style wearing "...dark gray, baggy trousers and a blue wool shirt over which he wore a button front sweater. Wide elastic armbands kept his sleeves pushed up. He wore ankle tennis shoes and when he walked to the post office or bank he seemed to bounce," writes Pat Brady Convery before her passing October 16, 2011.

Pat’s father, Joe Brady, had a grocery and meat market across the street at 431 W. Main. She regularly worked in the store while attending Brighton High School. She recalled Frank often coming to Brady’s store to purchase groceries. His usual request for..."two thirds of a dozen brown, not white, eggs" sent me scurrying behind the walk-in meat cooler to figure out what two thirds of the current price of eggs would be. Her father one day asked, "Frank why do you always buy two thirds of a dozen eggs?" "That’s what my pan holds," he replied. Perhaps because of Frank’s partiality to peanuts which he always carried unshelled in his pockets, and the floor of his store was always strewn with shells, he earned the nickname "Peanuts Cline". Cline also lived in the store, sleeping on the counter. Pat Brady Convery continues "It was impossible to see inside Frank’s store through his front window. The interior was always dim and the windows cluttered with merchandise. Inside a long wooden counter ran the length of the store. Most of it was piled high with heavy work pants, sweaters, hats and long underwear. At the far end of the counter it was clear. Under the edge, hidden from view, was a cash drawer which opened when touched at a special spot. He recommended wide suspenders during the winter as they were warmer." "Peanut" lived rather like a hermit but trusted everyone. Brady many times warned him to be more careful. Often Brady left a customer to quickly make change for the $20.00 bill Peanut brought for change, because Brady knew the clothing store had been left unattended. April 26, 1949, two brothers, believing "Peanut" had cash in the store, beat him so badly he died two days later. The cash drawer was found by police and Brady was able to touch the hidden spring revealing barely $100.00. Main Street merchants, customers and many other local residents displayed the respect they felt for Frank M. Cline at his burial in Calvary Cemetery. Following Cline’s murder the old store was repeatedly remodeled and renovated as the Argus office, medical offices, bakery, cafe, etc., before being demolished in March, 2006.

TRAIL TALES

Let's Build The Veterans' Memorial "One Brick at a Time"!

A site has been selected to relocate the expanded Brighton Veterans’ Memorial. The old memorial dedicated in 1954 has a bronze plaque mounted to a granite boulder and is located across the Mill pond opposite the gazebo. This plaque is dedicated to all Brighton area veterans that have served.

Discussion has persisted for several years on the need to relocate and expand the memorial to a site that is more respectful to the local men and women who have served. The new location is only 100 feet to the east, but redesigned and distant enough to minimize the droppings of the birds and ducks. The memorial is adjacent to the classic Old Town, setting provides an intimate location which provides recognition to veterans and the five branches of the Armed Services.

Your financial help is needed to complete this community project. Engraved paver bricks are being sold for $115 each and will be used for the Veterans’ Walk of Honor, which will be adjacent to the memorial. The commemorative bricks will be engraved with a local veteran’s name, rank, branch of service, duty station or ship, name of conflict and date. The Brighton Veterans’ Memorial Committee will work with families to ensure the engraving on the brick is most accurate. If your family does not include a veteran, the Committee with the assistance of the Brighton Area Historical Society will help you to select a local Civil War veteran or other veteran that has not been specifically recognized.

The Brighton community has always supported their defenders of freedom. Please visit the BVM website, www.BrightonVeteransMemorial.org to order your commemorative brick. If you have questions contact Bill Rubin at 810-227-7870.

Dedication of the Brighton Veterans Memorial is to be on Veterans' Day, November 11, 2013. Please help preserve local veterans’ history by supporting the Memorial funding. Please visit and attend this important day!
