TRUMAN B. WARDEN - BLACKSMITH

Ravaged in Wayne County, Truman (or Freeman) J. Warden purchased 80 acres in Brighton Township, Section 31, June 1, 1835. (E. of Grand River, both sides of Spencer Road.) Living in Brighton by January 25, 1837, 80 acres, was purchased in Section 30. January 21, 1837 and April 5, 1837, two 40 acre pieces in Genoa Township. Section 25 were recorded. These three, purchased in 1837, extended from Cross Street to Chillis Road, west from One Creek into Genoa Township. (Melvina, Brighton Mall, Mr. Brighton, etc.) The lake on the Genoa property became known as Warden Lake from which much ice was harvested over the years. When the railroad came in 1871, a portion of the eastern side was filled widening in Big and Little Warden.

As an early settler however, to his also goes the distinction of the first resident of Brighton (One Creek at the time) to die, November 29, 1837. He is the first buried in the Village Cemetery site. Truman's wife, Jane, was left with two children: Minerva, 13 and Fanny, 12, in a log house on the site of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 300 E. Grand River. It came to be called the Warden House. Jane appears to have sold the land is Section 31, by 1859, when it is owned by W. S. Smith and J. B. Lee, according to the atlas.

Minerva married Ernest A. Pratt on 1846. At 25 years he had come to Brighton in 1844. In 1850 they are located in town and he is working in his blacksmith shop, on the south side of E. North St., middle of the block. He worked his trade for 22 years making most of the plow irons used by the surrounding farmers. Their daughter, Florence, married Leslie Styles. In 1885 Ernestus is recorded as school board moderator. Early in the Civil War Ernestus joined the 15th Michigan Infantry Regiment as 1st Lt. of Co. G, October 22, 1861. Within the year he was promoted to captain. This regiment of 102 Livingston County men fought at Shiloh, Vicksburg, Decatur, Atlanta and Jonesboro in Georgia. They 'marched to the sea' with General Sherman. A total of 35 did not come home alive: 14 were killed, one died at Andersonville Prison, and 25 died of wounds or disease. Returning home, Ernestus bought a farm near Silver Lake in Green Oak Township. He served as J.P. in 1865, 1872.

In 1835, Fanny and husband Robert Charles are noted as owners of property (Brighton Section 30 and the Genoa acres) where they made their home. In 1870 daughter, Adelia, and husband Richard S. Hartshorne, Farnham, are with her parents on that site. The 1860 census indicates Fanny and her mother, Jane, are neighbors to Fanny's son Frank in the Pleasant Valley area. Fanny is recorded as a widow and Jane as divorced. However, since Robert is still alive (d. 1891) and Truman died in 1837, it seems likely the marital status of these two women is reversed. Frank married Carrie Delwitter October 5, 1874. Sister, Isabella married Daniel Hathaway and sister Blanche married Barton I. Case. (Compiled by Marianne B. Stair from Census records; 1830 History of Livingston County; Early Landowners and Settlers and obituaries by Hilton Charbonneau; Old Village Cemetery transcription by John J. Jenkins; and Stephen Leitch's Case Family History. Additions/Connections welcome. 810/229-6403.)

June 15, 1832. A cold, driving rain added to the jollity of the fallen timber and treacherous path. After marching two days, the deep snow, no grass and lack of a guide, they were forced to return to a place where there’d be grass for the horses.

June 18, two men were sent back to the Indian camp to hire guides. Five anxious days later the two returned with three guides. June 18, found them on Bald Mountain with good grass.

By June 30, they’d marched beyond Lolo Pass. Continuing along Traveler’s Rest Creek, Lewis’ horse lost his footing on the narrow trail and both slid down the mountain for about 40’, his horse almost falling on him before coming to rest.

...Postage stamps, Lyon School rest room supplies.

Did your Dad or Grandpa ever tell stories of his experiences in World War II. How about the funny tales of Uncle Herman catching a 'big one' at the lake? Remember all the family stories Grandma oral history preservation methods for recording memories of family and friends for future generations. The Michigan Oral History Association (MOHA) will be presenting a program on Oral History at the library on Saturday, June 10, 8:30 AM to 1:30 PM. The cost brightonlibrary.info. Registration deadline is June 21. For further questions contact the library at 810/799-8571 or the Society

VOYAGE OF DISCOVERY BICENTENNIAL

Early June, 1806, found the Corps still with the Nez Percé who convinced the Captains the creeks were too full, there would be no grass for the horses because of the deep snow and the trail would be snow-filled and slippery.

By June 10, despite the warnings, the Captains resumed the march. Everyone had to ride to a at the Melpie Prairie they waited for several days for the promised two Indian guides. The usually patient Captain Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark decided to continue without the guides. "...even now I shudder in expectation of the great difficulties in passing those mountains." (cont. p. 3)
